

Mary L. Snitch currently holds the position of Senior Manager, Global S&T Organizations, Lockheed Martin. Her 30-year professional career includes ten years at the U.S. Department of State and the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. She joined the private aerospace sector in 1983 with TRW. In 1985 Mary joined the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, CA as Manager, Legislative and International Affairs. Mary returned to Washington in 1990 to join Lockheed Martin Corporation. In her current position, Mary works closely with LM executive leadership at Corporate HQ, the Space Systems Company and the Aeronautics Company to advance their strategic goals to collaborate with external industry organizations.

Mary Snitch is an impactful contributor to the aerospace and STEM education community. She is a past member of the Board for the American Institute for Aeronautics and Astronautics (AIAA) and an a valued contributor to AIAA Committees and the Foundation. Mary is the 2018 recipient of the AIAA Distinguished Service Award. Mary is a member of the University of Maryland Aerospace Engineering Board of Visitors. She is an elected Full Member of the International Academy of Astronautics (IAA) and VP, of Global Member Development and Diversity Initiatives on the International Astronautical Federation Bureau. Mary serves on the Board of Future Space Leaders and represents Lockheed Martin on the Local Organizing Committees for IAC 2019 and the COSPAR Scientific Assembly 2018.

Mary received her Bachelor of Science in Business Administration from George Mason University and her Masters of Business Administration in Business, Economics and Public Policy from George Washington University. She completed LMC Executive Leadership Training at Claremont College in Claremont, CA and at Emory University, Atlanta, GA.